goes on to Kipahulu, Maui, to superintend the manufacture of sugar.

On Thanksgiving day services were held in the church both in the afternoon and evening. In the afternoon an interesting Thanksgiving program was carried out at the Junior Christian Endeavor meeting.

Hans H. Gittel, representing Hofschlaeger & Co., was at Hanalei last week on his farewell trip as a traveling salesman. He has been traveling for the past eight years in the interest of the company, and will now enter the firm as assistant business manager. Mr. Jacobs will take his place on the road.

The second and third grades of the Hanalei school have caught the spirit of gardening, and for some weeks past have been preparing beds for seeding. A week ago last Friday the third grade boys planted their garden, and last week the second grade boys got their seeds all into the ground. The first garden planted is doing as well as could be expected; the beans are blossoming, and some of the radishes are large enough for the market.

Monday night the Phillippinos gave another exhibition in the Chinese club house, and the performance was even better than the previous one. The show was well attended each night, especially by the school boys, who were not only entertained by the acrobats but were instructed as well, and the free shows they have been giving on the school grounds during the week, and the way they made their Indians and Pilgrims dance the rope and cut other didos, when illustrating their Thanksgiving story, would indicate that they are apt scholars in other things as well as their books.

Woman's Suffrage

The adoption of woman suffrage in California is likely to disturb the balance of power throughout the entire United States. There are now six states in the union in which equal suffrage prevails. This provision has added to the vote men cast, votes by women as follows: California, 500,000; Colorado, 160,000; Idaho, 48,000; Utah, 65,000; Washington, 120,000; Wyoming, 35,000; total 928,000.

This vote of nearly 1,000,000 makes the result in the presidential election very uncertain. It is seldom that any president receives a plurality as great as this. If the women should unite on one candidate, or if they should throw their vote almost solidly to the Socialists, there would be such a tremendous political change as would amount practically to a revolution.

Although the Socialist party is the only one in the United States that has persistently from the first declared for equal suffrage for women, suffrage is coming by leaps and bounds. There are now only nineteen states in the union which have no form of suffrage for women, although some cities in some of these states have that suffrage.

Kentucky was the first state in the country to give women limited suffrage; that was in 1836. Now all the states in the union, except Nevada, Texas, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Indiana, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Maine have some of woman suffrage. In addition, limited suffrage is granted in the Isle of Man, New Zealand, South and West Australia, New South Wales, Tasmania, Queensland, Finland, Norway and Iceland.

It is estimated that the total number of women in the world who now enjoy a measure of suffrage is 15,514,647. This is bigger than any party in any country of the

Good Road Stories

A couple of good-roads stories are going the rounds of the Pacific Coast at present, which are opportune, in view of the fact that everybody in this section of the country is interested in the good roads movement.

John Doe was on his road home. His two-horse rig was plugging along with its load. The barn was only a quarter of a mile off, when flop goes the front wheel into a big bog hole and John went off his seat into the mud. Spattered with mud, and the axle of his wagon broken, John reached home in due time, and after cooling down sufficiently, wrote his opinion of Supervisors, in general, to the county clerk, and asked when the board was going to get busy and put some gravel on his road.

Two or three days afterwards, with no wagon, John had to saddle one of the horses in order to go to town. Returning homewards, the horse stepped into a similar hole and John left the saddle for the more stable ground. Arriving home he wrote a second letter to the supervisors with stronger opinions on the condition of roads, only this time he did not want gravel on the road at all. He wanted it upholstered.

This is a Mexican good road story that may have a local flavor: The American came back to the states, a total wreck from its efforts to construct a main highway from one town to another. Said he, "They seem to have time to burn all the time down there, yet nothing is done and no one can get anything done." The fial shock came when he tried to argue the subject with a native official.

"How long does it take you to bring a load into town?"

"About three days, senor."

"Well, if you had a good road like I propose, you could do it in less than a day."

"Si, senor, but what would we do with those other two days?"

world. Woman suffrage is coming, and Socialism, because of being the only party in America that advocates it, will receive a strong vote from the women of America.
